JM EAGLE AN MBE COMPANY

Public-utility projects seeking to fulfill Utility Supplier Diversity Program requirements can look to JM Eagle to provide Minority Business Enterprise designation in plastic-pipe suppliers.

A member of the U.S. Department of Commerce Minority

Business Development Agency since 2007, JM Eagle employs a largely diverse workforce, certified by an MBE clearinghouse. Membership means JM Eagle is recognized by the Joint Utilities as a minority-owned business when competing for procurements by public utilities participating in the USDP.

“Many government projects require that the building products used be manufactured by MBE-certified producers,” says Neal Gordon, JM Eagle vice president of marketing. “At JM Eagle, we are proud to be one of the few plastic-pipe manufacturers to hold this important designation.”

Companies earn the certification by proving they are at least 51 percent woman- or minority-owned. Government-sponsored building projects frequently require a number of certified companies to complete jobs.

Although the MBE certification was issued by a clearinghouse in California, it applies to projects nationwide.

“JM Eagle’s MBE designation is the point of difference over other pipe manufacturers,” says Gordon. “It provides that extra advantage in securing government contracts.”
